taken to Undertaker, Preshaw's, and will be buried this morning in the city cemetery.

The Street Railways.

Things remained quiet in street railway circles again yesterday. The Ogden City company were putting up poles and stringing wires, and the Henderson company were working some on their tracks.

The Ogden Smelter.

A HERALD reporter was at Judge Preshaw's office yesterday in search of news concerning the proposed smelter, and the following conversation took place:

"Well, judge, is the Niagara Mining company going to build a smelter in Ogden?"

"Yes."

"We expect to begin work on the building some time next spring."

"Has the company found a location yet?"

"We haven't fully decided that part of it yet."

"The building will cost in the neighborhood of one million dollars, will it not?"

"Yes, all of a million dollars, will be expended in the enterprise. The trouble has been that we have never had a smelter for our ores, and now we intend to do away with that difficulty, and not only that, but to develop the great wealth of many valuable mines around Ogden, and you can mark my work on that."

"The judge was asked several other questions relative to the enterprise, but he was not in a position to answer them just at present."
